

Brecon Beacons NATIONAL PARK

Pocket Guide

Welcome...

On Cribyn, Brecon Beacons

...to the Brecon Beacons National Park, a unique landscape of Old Red Sandstone peaks, open moorland, green valleys, hidden waterfalls and fern-filled gorges. Explore caves and castles, vibrant villages and an array of events for a truly Welsh experience.

You can see the past wherever you go - from the mountains formed millions of years ago to the monuments left by early inhabitants - ancient standing stones, Bronze Age burial cairns, Iron Age hill forts and Roman ruins to medieval castles and relics of the Industrial Age. You can also glimpse into the future - with local farmers supplying their produce to your plate and local communities embracing renewable energy and even selling electricity back to the National Grid!

Savour a taste of Wales, feel the freedom of the hills and the delights of each passing season. Discover Spring birdsong, spectacular Autumn colours and fresh clean air.

National Parks

What are they?

National Parks are areas of exceptional natural beauty which benefit from special protection and management, with great opportunities for everyone to enjoy the outdoors.

The National Park Authorities are here to:

Conserve and enhance the natural beauty, wildlife and cultural heritage of the Parks

Promote understanding and enjoyment of their special qualities, and;

Foster the social and economic well-being of the communities within their boundaries.

There are 14 National Parks in the UK, 3 of which are in Wales: the Brecon Beacons, Snowdonia and the Pembrokeshire Coast.

Brecon Beacons National Park Authority

We are a special purpose Local Authority operating within local government. With support from expert staff, 24 members are responsible for making decisions, setting policies and priorities and ensuring best use of resources.

Two thirds of members are appointed by unitary authorities within the Park's boundary and one third are appointed by the Welsh Assembly Government. Much of the Authority's work is carried out in partnership with other public bodies which also have a duty to take account of National Park purposes in their decisions.

Visit www.breconbeacons.org for more information.

Fforest Fawr Geopark

Wales' First European Geopark

Fforest Fawr Geopark coincides with the western half of Brecon Beacons National Park and is a great place to start your exploration of the Earth's remarkable history.

Fforest Fawr Geopark is Wales' first member of the European Geoparks Network and UNESCO Global Geoparks Network.

Visit www.fforestfawrgeopark.org.uk to find out more.

Why is the Brecon Beacons National Park so special?

Sugar Loaf, near Abergavenny

Ponies and Kites

The Park is one of the last outposts for Welsh Mountain Ponies to breed, live and run wild across the rugged and remote uplands.

The skies above are home to a once endangered but now thriving population of Red Kites.

Llangors Lake

Protected for us all

Dedicated teams look after the countryside and built environment in partnership with many others.

We all have a part to play in shaping the landscape - choose to be actively involved in planning its future!

Farmers' Markets, Food Fayres and Festivals

The National Park is home to two world renowned festivals - the Hay-on-Wye Literature Festival in May and the Brecon Jazz Festival in August, as well as hosting a dazzling array of opportunities to buy locally produced delicacies and specialities of the region.

Brecon

Fforest Fawr Geopark

The National Park encompasses Wales' first European and UNESCO Global Geopark within its boundaries.

The story of our rocks reveal a land flooded by ancient seas, raised high by colliding continents, baked dry under tropical skies and sculpted by mighty glaciers.

Green credentials

The area is fast becoming a green destination. Make yourself feel good by supporting eco-friendly accommodation and reducing your carbon footprint by taking public transport for a day.

You can download the 'Stay Somewhere Green!' booklet from our website or pick up a copy from Information Centres.

Come and visit!

The National Park Visitor Centre

An ideal starting point for exploring the National Park and Forest Fawr Geopark with displays, publications and friendly staff to give information and advice.

There are tea rooms serving local produce, spacious grounds, superb mountain views and leisurely walks on the adjoining common.

Craig-y-nos Country Park

Laid out in Victorian times by the famous opera singer Adelina Patti with 40 acres of woodland, meadows and riverside walks, the Country Park offers you a beautiful and peaceful retreat.

Both Eco-Centres make a great day out for school groups. Call 01874 620463 to find out more.

The Waterfalls Centre

Housing an exhibition showing the formation of the waterfalls and uniqueness of the Forest Fawr Geopark, this Centre is an ideal place to start your exploration of Waterfall Country. Choose an audio trail to take on a walk, pick up our new guide to the Gunpowder Works or just breathe in the misty air at the magical Sgwad yr Eira waterfall - an experience never to be forgotten!

One of Britain's breathing spaces

Did you know?....

The National Park covers 1,346 square kilometres or 520 square miles covering four distinct mountain ranges. This is the same size as the London underground system.

There are 1,983 kilometres or 1,232 miles of public rights of way - that's about the length of the Great Barrier Reef in Australia!

Around 33,000 people live in the National Park which is equivalent to the population of Monaco.

The largest town is the cathedral town of Brecon with a population of 7,500.

Over 4.2 million visitor days are spent in the Park each year, bringing £133 million into the local economy.

Four of the five longest cave systems in the UK are in the National Park.

The National Park has 268 scheduled ancient monuments spanning 7000 years of human history.

Pen y Crug

There are about 5300 kilometres of hedgerows - that's roughly the length of Denmark's coastline!

Britain's most southerly home for Red Grouse is right here in the National Park.

The Park is the main stronghold of Welsh Mountain Ponies and the societies which protect them.

Over 70% of Wales' limestone pavement lies within the Park's boundaries.

The greatest collection of waterfalls in one small area in the UK is around Ystradfellite and Pontneddfechan - home to some of Wales' rarest mosses and ferns.

Britain's largest breeding population of Lesser Horseshoe Bats (Rhinolophus hipposiderae) live here.

Some of the rarest trees in the world are various species of whitebeam (Sorbus species) which survive only here.

Brecon Beacons

The National Park has the largest area of open hill common in Wales spanning about 20 miles.

Brecon Mountain Railway

Before you go walking....

- Plan your route carefully - Centre staff can help.
- Check the weather and mountain area forecasts.
- For news on access closures and fire risks check www.ccw.gov.uk.
- Tell someone where you are going and when you'll be back.
- Make sure you are properly equipped - maps, clothing, food and drink.
- Please note that many mobile phones do not work in mountain areas and gorges.
- River water is always cold and wading or swimming across can be extremely dangerous
- In an emergency dial 999 - ask for the Police and then Mountain Rescue.

Caring for the Brecon Beacons

You can play your part in helping us to care for the National Park, so future generations can continue to enjoy this special place.

Be safe

Please follow the Countryside Code, respect the mountain environment and drive safely as sheep, ponies and cattle gather near roadsides on open commons.

Keep other people and wildlife safe by taking your litter home. Please be considerate of other users.

Take action

Stay somewhere green, eat locally produced and sourced food whilst you're here and when you're at home. Leave the car behind and try public transport for a day.

Share a journey of discovery on our guided walks. Become a volunteer within the National Park or make a donation. Come and learn from us - our Eco-Centres demonstrate actions we've taken to reduce our environmental impact - and try them in your home.

Be inspired

Our National Park is a wonderful place - be inspired and find something from the landscape and its people that will stay with you for longer.

Share

Please share your experiences of the Brecon Beacons with your friends and family and bring them with you next time you spend the day with us.

Enjoy

Please have fun in the Park and respect this special place.

Take control of your dog and keep our wildlife and livestock safe.

Please don't disturb or feed our wildlife or pick our flowers and plants. Please take plenty of photographs, make drawings and memories.
